Seat of Modoc County, it is principally a commercial center for the ranchers in the surrounding area. Originally named Dorris Bridge after James Dorris, its first permanent white settler, it changed its name to Alturas in 1874.

HOTELS:

Modoc, 1238 Main St. 46 Rms. $3.00-$6.00
Niles, Main St. 65 Rms. $4.00-$7.00

Anaheim, Calif. Alt. 158 Pop. 14,556

Anaheim was settled in 1857 by a German colony from San Francisco. After several unsuccessful years of wine-grape growing, the settlers turned toward the development of citrus fruits and today the city is surrounded by the world's leading Valencia orange district—vivid testimony to far-sighted untiring effort. While in Anaheim one should visit City Park, a beauty spot containing relics of the early days. Large orange packing houses surround Anaheim and factories of many by-products are numerous. A Polish settlement, two miles east of the city, gained prominence at the turn of the century when Madame Modjeska (the great actress) and Henryk Sienkiewicz (author of Quo Vadis, et cetera) established homes and lived there for several years. Madame Modjeska also maintained an estate called "The Forest of Arden" located in nearby Santiago Canyon.

Antioch, Calif. Alt. 15 Pop. 11,051

On the south bank of the San Joaquin River, its first settlers were twin brothers, Joseph H. and W. W. Smith, both carpenters and ordained ministers who arrived in 1849 from Boston. In 1851 the question of a name for the settlement arose and W. W. Smith suggested a biblical name in honor of his brother who had meanwhile died.

The name Antioch, where Christ's followers were first called Christians, was proposed and unanimously adopted.

MOTEL:

Riverview Motel... 23 Units $5.00-$7.00

Aptos, Calif. Alt. 99 Pop. 735

Located in the center of a combination vacation-agricultural area. The Aptos Valley offers splendid camp sites and resorts surrounded by giant coastal Redwoods. As fine beaches are nearby the entire area meets every vacation demand.

Arcadia, Calif. Alt. 475 Pop. 33,446

Situated at the base of the San Gabriel Mountains, 15 miles east of Los Angeles, Arcadia is a shipping point for citrus fruits and the home of Santa Anita Park. The Park occupies a portion of the historic old Baldwin Rancho, is one of the world's leading horse racing strips and since its inception (1934) has introduced and developed the photographic start and finish, electrical timing and the totalizer—all innovations to later be installed by the more important race courses of the country. The Lyon Pony Express Museum, also in Arcadia, a treasure trove of early California lore, is open daily (admission charges 25 cents—children 10 cents) and Arcadia County Park, where one may enjoy swimming, golf, bowling-on-the-green, tennis, horse-shoes, roque and picnicking.

Carmel, Calif. Alt. 20 Pop. 4,351

Carmel — "The Artistic Village" — is probably America's most charming community. Delightfully located on the Pacific Ocean, it lies in a forest of pines, live oaks and cypress, with the majestic mountains of the Monterey Peninsula towering to the rear. Literally surrounded by California history, Carmel is quaintly old-fashioned, and yet ultra-modern. All forms of construction, from highways to business structures, have been designed to fit into the lovely, natural advantages and to enhance the charm of this delightful community. Just south of the city is located Mission San Carlos de Borromeo, originally built in 1770 in connection with the Presidio at Monterey. After one year the mission was moved to its present site on the Carmel River, and upon the deaths of Father Crespi in 1782 and Father Serra in 1784, they were entombed there. Thousands visit this spot annually to pay homage to the memory of the gentle Padres, whose faith and courage created an immortal inspiration for the entire state.

Claremont is a college town on U.S. 66, 35 miles east of Los Angeles and close to the San Bernardino County line; lying at the base of towering Mt. Baldy, it was founded shortly before the twentieth century and almost immediately after the A. T. & S. F. Ry. had erected a station there, a small group founded Pomona College. Since then Scripps and Claremont Colleges, with their beautiful buildings and grounds, have been added along with several schools for boys. Contemporary with the educational development has been the growth of the citrus industry and since Claremont's first shipment of oranges in 1893, the city now has several of the largest up-to-date packing houses in the country. The little theatre of the Padua Hills, where Mexican plays in the Spanish language are produced, lies a short distance north of Claremont.

Coronado's history dates from the days when whaling ships called for ballast at Ballast Point, crossed the channel to Fort Pio Pico on North Island (a part of the Coronado Peninsula), and fished in Whaler's and Spanish Bights. In 1886 the peninsula was sold at auction, the Hotel del Coronado was completed in 1888 and from that date Coronado has steadily grown. North Island, just above Coronado, has developed rapidly from 1910, when Glenn Curtiss established his first flying school. Since then a Navy Air base has been established on the island and it was from there that Lindberg made his start on the flight to Paris. Coronado is noted for many sports, among them fishing, yachting and sailing, and its yacht club is well worth visiting. Swimming is very popular, as are golf and tennis and numerous tournaments are held each year.

Crater Lake National Park, Ore. Alt. 7,076

Discovered in 1853 by John Wesley Hamilton, leader of a party of miners who had run short of supplies and were hunting game, it was named Deep Blue Lake. In 1862 another party of miners visited the spot and, believing they had made a new discovery, named it Blue Lake. In 1865 a third discovery was made by a party of soldiers who named it Lake Majesty. This name was changed in 1869 to Crater Lake.

The great sunken lake was formed in the crater of Mount Mazama when it either exploded or burned itself out and collapsed.

Points of interest include Sinnott Memorial which houses an exhibit of pictures and paintings of the lake; Rim Drive encircling the crater; Wizard Island, a cinder cone rising 780 feet above the water; The Phantom Ship, a twisted mass of lava resembling a ship under sail, and Llao Rock on the north rim of the crater. This famous rock is important in the Indian legends of the region. The legend is that here the body of the great god Llao was quartered by an enemy god and thrown into the lake where it was eaten by his own monsters, but when his head was thrown in the monsters recognized it and would not eat it. Liao's head still lies in the lake and white men call it Wizard Island.

Created a National Park in 1902, this scenic wonderland is visited by thousands of people annually.

Del Mar, Calif. Alt. 122 Pop. 782

Situated in the San Dieguito district, 18.5 miles north of San Diego, and on a fine bathing beach, Del Mar has long been one of the favored resort sections of Southern California. The vacation spot is surrounded by large areas devoted to flower and fruit growing. Along the coast are many avocado groves and some distance inland is a district producing oranges, lemons and papayas. Large fields of poinsettias and gladioli are grown there and bulbs are shipped to all parts of the country. Del Mar Turf Club is situated one mile north of town. Torrey Pines Park, overlooking the sea from the high cliffs just south of Del Mar, has been set aside as a recreational playground principally because it is the habitat of the grotesque and wind-blown Torrey Pine. Picnic grounds have been installed, making it an ideal spot amid unusual and picturesque surroundings.

On a plateau between the White and Green Rivers, it is the gateway to the recreation areas of the Mount Rainier and Snoqualmie National Forests. Settled by Danes and Norwegians, they established many co-operative organizations and this was a contributing factor in the growth of the town. Lumbering and dairying are the chief industries, although some coal is still mined nearby.

Escondido, Calif. Alt. 680 Pop. 8,269

Escondido is 31.5 miles north of San Diego on U.S. 395. The first citrus fruits in that area were planted during the early 90's and now there are three large packing plants, one exclusively for lemons, the largest in the State, with storage facilities for 600 cars; and a second plant exclusively for oranges is a model that has been followed by plants being built in other areas. The Fuerte Avocado long ago passed the experimental stage, is one of California's most popular fruits, and the soil in the vicinity of Escondido produces these in great abundance. Hodges Lake is 6 miles due south of Escondido; the Pala Mission lies to the northwest. Other recreational areas include nearby Lake Wohlford, Felicita Park, and Grape Day Park.

Glendora, Calif. Alt. 776 Pop. 5,290

Situated at the base of the San Gabriel Mountains, 24 miles east of Los Angeles and just to the north of U.S. 66, Glendora is one of Southern California's more prominent citrus towns. Fortunate in having a surrounding area of great beauty it has grown from a modest ten acre ranch to a city of impressive homes and a prosperous citrus industry. During the last few years, probably because of its attractive setting and quiet atmosphere, Glendora has become headquarters for a growing educational system which now includes several private schools for girls and boys. Being so close to the mountains, Glendora has easy access to such well known points of interest as San Gabriel Canyon with its dams, resorts and popular Crystal Lake Recreation Area; Mt. Baldy and Big and Little Dalton Canyons. Glendora has gained attention resulting from the establishment of the San Dimas Experimental Forest, located on a 17,000 acre site a short distance north of the city. The project is proving valuable not only to the study of forestry, but erosion control as well.

Lassen Volcanic National Park, Calif.

Alt. 5,850

Lassen Volcanic National Park was created in 1916, to preserve Lassen Peak and the spectacular volcanic area surrounding it. It is the most recently active volcano in the United States proper, its last eruptions occurring between 1914 and 1921, with the most violent one in May, 1915.

Points of interest that should be visited are: The Sulphur Works, Lake Emerald, The Devastated Area, Chaos Jumbles and Dwarf Museum. Probably the most spectacular scene of turbulent disorder in the area is the Chaos Jumbles in the northwest corner of the park.

Lebanon, Ore. Pop. 5,873

In a fruit, nut and farming area, it is probably best known as a strawberry producing center. Surveyed by Jeremiah Ralston in 1851 and named for a town in Tennessee, it was an important stop on the Cascade Wagon Trail. A monument to The Pioneers of the Oregon Trail stands at Main and Tangent Streets and in the town is another monument perpetuating the memory of the Santiam Academy.

Lee Vining, Calif. Alt. 6,780 Pop. 325

Located near Mono Lake, a weird, mysterious appearing body of water containing heavy chemical deposits. In the early lumbering and mining days it is said the Chinese cooks cleansed the silverware simply by sacking it and tossing it into the lake. The action of the chemicals purportedly restored the original luster. Lee Vining is also the junction for Calif. 120, which proceeds west over Tioga Pass to Yosemite National Park.

Long Beach, Calif. Alt. 32 Pop 250,767

Long Beach is 22 miles south of Los Angeles, situated on the Pacific Ocean, and is California's fifth largest city. A vacation, business, distributing and oil center, its growth, especially during the last few years and since the discovery of oil on nearby Signal Hill, has been phenomenal. Water sports there, both in the surf as well as along the lagoon, are popular, as are golf and the various recreations at the several parks and playgrounds. The Pike, a "walk of a million lights," is Long Beach's amusement center where there are theaters, dance pavilions, side shows, arcades, roller coasters and ferris wheels. A fine salt water plunge also is in this vicinity and is open the year 'round. Since oil was discovered on Signal Hill in 1921, nearly one billion dollars has been made in this tremendous development, and a drive through the maze of derricks cannot fail to impress one. Long Beach's cultural life centers about its municipal auditorium where concerts, community programs, lectures and conventions take place

Los Angeles, Calif. Alt. 320 Pop. 2,104,663

Third city in the United States in population and first in area, it has a colorful background.

On September 4, 1781, Don Felipe de Neve, Governor of California, with a small group of soldiers and eleven families, marched from San Gabriel and with the assistance of a few priests from the San Gabriel Mission, conducted solemn rites and ceremonies and founded El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de Los Angeles de Porciuncula (The Town of Our Lady the Queen of the Angeles of Porciuncula). The site of the pueblo was at what is now Alameda and Commercial Streets, although today there is no trace of the original buildings.

As late as 1846 the population was less than 3,000, but with the seizure of California by the United States it became a rip-roaring frontier town. The Southern Pacific Railroad reached here in 1876 and the Santa Fe in 1885. Almost immediately the great Southern California land boom was in full swing, and Los Angeles leaped ahead under the impetus of new money, new ideas and new citizens.

Outstanding points of interest are: the Plaza, the Plaza Church at 100 Sunset Blvd. (constructed in 1818-22, it is the oldest church in the city); Olvera Street, with its many Mexican shops and cafes, here, from December 16th to 24th, a colorful ceremony of Mary's Journey to Bethlehem in search of a birthplace for Jesus is enacted, and on the Saturday before Ash Wednesday another rite, the Blessing of the Animals, takes place; Los Angeles Union Passenger Terminal; Cathedral of St. Vibiana; City Hall; U.S. Post Office and Court House; Los Angeles Public Library; Chinatown; Los Angeles County Hospital, largest institution of its kind; La Brea Pits in Hancock Park, where remarkable discoveries of prehistoric animals were made; Exposition Park, with its Memorial Coliseum, where the 1932 Olympic Games were held; the State Armory; California State Exposition Building and the Los Angeles County Museum; Southwest Museum; the Griffith Park Observatory and Planetarium; Hollywood Bowl (site of "Symphonies Under the Stars"); Pilgrimage Theatre; many beautiful churches, among which are St. Vincent's, St. Brendan's, St. Paul's Cathedral, Immanuel Presbyterian, Wilshire Methodist Episcopal, St. John's Episcopal and Wilshire Blvd. Christian; a vast park system and famous residential districts. It is also the home of the University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, Loyola University and other colleges. Its industries include motion pictures, oil, manufacturing, fruit packing, etc.

Mojave, Calif. Alt. 2,756 Pop. 2,055

An important railroad division point and, more recently, rapidly developing as a mining center. Here the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and Southern Pacific Railroads begin the use of a joint track for the long gruelling journey over the Tehachapi Mountains to the west. In earlier days the sojourner in Mojave would often see the great wagon trains hauling supplies to the many chemical and mineral mines in the area. One of the basic elements for one of the most common household soaps is mined northeast of Mojave, near Randsburg. 25 miles north is scenic Red Rock Canyon, on U.S. 6.

Monterey, Calif. Alt. 25 Pop. 16,205

California's first capital and the locale for so much early history that volumes have been written about the city and surrounding area. Original discovery of the bay is credited to Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo in 1542 and in 1602 Vizcaino sailed into the bay and named it Monterey. It was not until 1770 that an overland expedition discovered the location and erected a Mission. One year later the Mission was moved to the present site on the Carmel River. From 1770 to 1775 Monterey was the de facto capital of Alta California, under Spanish rule. In 1777 the first governor arrived and from that time to the end of 1849 Monterey was the official capital. In 1846, captured by Commodore John D. Sloat, the Stars and Stripes were raised on the famous old Customs House, which still stands. Though many interesting buildings have disappeared, more have survived than in any western city. Many of the homes are surrounded by the original gardens, and the visitor to Monterey may truly feel that he has walked with those who founded civilization on the west coast.

Murrieta, Calif. Alt. 1,093 Pop. 475

Murrieta is named after J. Murrieta, a rancher who owned a portion of the Temecula Rancho. The city is situated in a picturesque semi-arid valley with mountains seemingly on all sides and circled on three sides by Murrieta Creek. Farming forms the chief occupation, but the city is best known for the nearby Murrieta Hot Springs, one of California's older health resorts.

Newhall, Calif. Alt. 1,269 Pop. 2,527

Formerly an important stage point on the old Butterfield lines and at present one of the few typically western towns remaining in the State. An important cattle and grain producing area surrounds Newhall. In nearby Placerita Canyon gold was first discovered in California by Don Francisco Lopez in 1842. Just west of Newhall, in Pico Canyon, is the site of the discovery of oil in California, and the state's first refinery, located here, has recently been restored.

Newport, Ore. Alt. 68 Pop. 3,241

Primarily a resort town, there is still considerable shell fishing done and the view of the fishing fleet at anchor at sunset is attractive. The bay is also the anchorage for the deep sea fishing boats. At Olsonville, now a part of Newport, Lieutenant Sheridan in 1856 selected a suitable spot for a fort and found it covered with Indian burial canoes. After mediation the Indians agreed to their removal but refused to do it themselves, so at high tide the soldiers launched them, and the canoes, each bearing its dead, drifted slowly out toward the sunset.

Oceanside, Calif. Alt. 83 Pop. 12,881

Oceanside is the northern gateway to San Diego County and many of its scenic and interesting attractions. It is 36 miles north of San Diego, situated on the coast and is a distributing center for a large and fertile region which is devoted largely toward the production of vegetables, citrus and deciduous fruits and flowers. Oceanside possesses a junior college, attractive homes, a fine beach with a recreation pier and paved strand, and is the international headquarters for the Rosicrucian Fellowship. Four miles east of Oceanside in the beautiful San Luis Rey Valley is the mission of the same name which was founded by the intrepid Father Junipero Serra in 1789. The mission stands in its original grandeur, is maintained as a school of training for the priesthood and visitors are welcome daily. Beside the mission stands the first pepper tree ever to be planted in California and close at hand are two olive trees, each of which is more than 100 years old. Beyond the San Luis Rey Valley and the famous old ranchos, so symbolic of early California life, is the Pala Mission, where Indians from several neighboring reservations meet to worship. Palomar Mountain, some distance inland from Oceanside, is the location of the world's largest telescope, a tourist attraction for thousands throughout the world. Another point of worthwhile interest is the Rancho San Luis Rey, which specializes in the breeding of fine horses, many of which are being run on California tracks as well as other racing strips throughout the United States.

Ojai, Calif. Alt. 750 Pop. 2,519

Fourteen miles north of Ventura lies Ojai—"The Nest." Hidden in a valley of the Coast Range, it is aptly named. Primarily a residential community and resort town, Ojai is secluded, yet accessible over paved road from Ventura or Santa Paula. The Ojai Tennis Tournament is held there annually, generally late in April. Located there are the nationally known Ojai Valley School, Thatcher Preparatory School for boys and the St. Thomas Villanova Preparatory School for boys. Interesting and beautiful is the construction of the Ojai Valley Country Club—a hacienda-type rambling structure of Spanish architecture. Both game and bird hunting, as well as fishing, are available near Ojai, and riding possibilities are unlimited.

Olympic National Park, Wash.
(P.O. Port Angeles)

A masterpiece of scenic magnificence, it contains the finest remnant of the Pacific Northwest rain forest. This wilderness area comprises the heart of the Olympic Peninsula in Washington, and is situated between the Pacific Ocean on the west and Puget Sound and Hood Canal on the east. Here, within a few miles of the sea, the mountains rise to lofty heights, with Mt. Olympus, the highest, attaining an elevation of 7,954 feet. The mountains are very rugged, with spectacular cliffs and peaks and on their slopes are some of the largest glaciers in the United States. Magnificent stands of timber cover the slopes below the 5,000 foot level.

In the lower valleys of the western slopes the rainfall averages 142 inches annually. Here are the rain forests, tropical in luxuriance, with an undergrowth of vine maple, bigleaf maple, ferns and thick carpets of moss.

This region first received national recognition because of its wildlife, particularly the Roosevelt elk. Of the 6,500 elk estimated to inhabit the peninsula, more than half are in the park, chiefly on the western slopes. On the eastern and northern slopes the blacktail deer predominate and Rocky Mountain goat, cougar and black bear are plentiful.

Palo Alto, Calif. Alt. 58 Pop. 25,475

Often referred to as the Pasadena of Northern California—Palo Alto (Tall Tree) was named for a large coast redwood which stands near the city. World famous as the home of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, it also has been described as "an exquisite, tree shaded country of beautiful, spacious homes, of gardens, matchless climate, good neighbors and honest standards." Public buildings and schools have a distinctive type of early California architecture, and many of the line homes of the city carry the same motif. Big Basin Redwoods State Park, and adjacent territory, less than forty miles distant by excellent highway, offers unexcelled recreational facilities. San Francisco is but 32 miles north.

Lies at the base of the San Gabriel Mountains, 10 miles northeast of Los Angeles. Is the location of the California Institute of Technology. Each New Year's Day it is the scene of "The Tournament of Roses," which is followed by the Rose Bowl Football game. Christmas Tree Lane (Santa Rosa Avenue) contains some of the finest specimens of Himalayan Deodars, which are lighted Christmas week. Southeast of Pasadena, in San Marino, is the Huntington Library and Art Gallery containing the finest group of English portraits in the world. In addition, there is a marvelous collection of porcelain, tapestries, miniatures and fine specimens of period furniture. The botanical gardens on the grounds contain over 500 varieties of plants and shrubs. Visitors are admitted by card, available on application. Open daily except Monday. The Library is closed throughout the month of October. Immediately north of Pasadena is Mt. Wilson Observatory.

Probably the finest almond producing area in the United States is encompassed by the rolling, oak-studded hills which predominate throughout this area. Poultry ranches are also gaining in numbers, and increasing the value of shipments from Paso Robles. The hot springs are widely known for their radio-active sulphur and lithia waters. Nine miles north of Paso Robles, Mission San Miguel Archangel is located, and is famous for the artistic and beautiful decorations. A spot just north of the building was used as a campsite by Captain John Fremont and a plaque now marks the spot.

Placerville, Calif. Alt. 1,860 Pop. 3,749

Placerville, known in 1848 as Dry Diggings, was called "Hangtown" because of a series of hangings which took place in the early days of rigorous justice. It was later named Placerville as the old gave way to the new. The present Raffles Hotel, originally known as the Carey House, was a principal stop of the "Overland Stage" where Hank Monk, ace of drivers and one of the original characters in Mark Twain's story "Roughing It," always changed horses. Several large fortunes were started in Placerville. John Studebaker, one of the brothers of automobile fame, failed as a miner in this town, so he began making miners' wheel-barrow, and later, wagons. Mark Hopkins obtained his start in the business world as a Placerville grocer.

Pomona, in the eastern portion of Los Angeles County, is situated in one of California's citrus fruit and agricultural areas 30 miles east of Los Angeles, close to the San Gabriel Range and near the base of Mt. San Antonio, elevation 10,080 feet. The Goddess of Fruits and Flowers, for whom Pomona was named, is an appropriate name for an area surrounded by 30,000 acres of citrus fruits. Animal husbandry is highly developed in this district and especially the raising of race horses, dairy stock and poultry. During September, Pomona is the scene of the Annual Los Angeles County Fair, which is America's largest and most beautiful county fair. The city has several well developed parks, the best known of which is Ganesha Park. The Kellogg Campus of the California State Polytechnic College is a short distance west on U.S. 60-70-99, and horse shows are held on Sunday afternoons from the first Sunday of October until the last Sunday of May. There are two shows, one at 2:00 P.M. and the other at 3:30 P.M. A small admission fee is charged.

Prineville, Ore. Alt. 2,870 Pop. 3,233

Seat of Crook County, it was named after its first settler, Barney Prine. In the early days sheep raising was the principal industry in the surrounding area and some of the bloodiest encounters of the "sheep and cattle wars" took place in the Prineville region. Chief industries in the vicinity are dairying and the raising of poultry, sheep and cattle.

Originally called Deskins after the operator of a pioneer sawmill built in the 1870's and for which the machinery was packed in by mules from Red Bluff, California. The window casing and doors for old Fort Klamath were sawed in this mill, as was lumber for many of the houses in Jacksonville which at that time was the metropolis of Southern Oregon.

Redlands, Calif. Alt. 1,356 Pop. 19,814

Redlands is another of San Bernardino County's greater orange belt cities. It is an important educational center, being the seat of the University of Redlands. Redlands is famed as one of the largest navel orange growing and shipping points in the world, loading some 6,000 cars annually from its more than 18,000 acres. Redlands is an old California town and evidence will be found in the crumbling adobes scattered throughout the city and in the Asistencia de San Bernardino, founded by the San Gabriel Mission, in the early 1800's and which has, during the last few years, been reconstructed to its original condition. The mission is on Barton Road, 1 mile west of Redlands, and open to visitors during the day. Redlands is very close to the San Bernardino Mountains and such resort areas as Forest Home, Barton Flats, Big Bear and Arrowhead Lakes are all easily accessible by line highways.

San Diego, Calif. Alt. 11 Pop. 429,231

Founded in 1769, it is one of California's most historic cities. Today it is a great city of industry and a popular resort area. The most important points of interest include: Old Town with its many adobes where the early history of San Diego really began; Point Loma, which includes such interesting places as Ballast Point where rock ballast was taken on by sailing vessels, Battery Whistler, the Post Cemetery and Fort Rosecrans, the Theosophical Headquarters, et cetera; Balboa Park, a fully developed and beautiful area of 1,400 acres, containing an outstanding zoo which, among other remarkable specimens of animal life, has two huge gorillas; the San Diego Museum, the Plaza de Panama where pigeons gather by the hundreds, the Spreckels Organ, which is the largest out-door organ in the world; Montezuma Gardens, et cetera. For recreation the Park contains golf courses, roque and shuffleboard, bowling-on-the-green, horseshoes, et cetera. Military activities in San Diego and environs are numerous. They include North Island U. S. Naval Air Base; Fort Rosecrans; Coast Artillery Fort; a base for the Coast Guard Decommissioned Destroyers; Naval Hospital; Naval Radio Station; Naval Training Station, and a Naval Reserve Armory. Across the Bay is Coronado, a popular resort city, while 16 miles south lies Tijuana and Agua Caliente. North of San Diego 7 miles is the Old San Diego Mission, which was the first of the Missions founded by Father Junipero Serra, on July 16, 1769.

Located in the north end of fertile San Fernando Valley. Fruit and garden produce are trucked in great quantities from here. Location of San Fernando Mission, one of the famous California chain, constructed in 1797, and dedicated to Fernando III, then King of Spain. Just north of the city the Los Angeles aqueduct crosses U.S. 99. One of the longest in the world, the aqueduct has at this point an artificial waterfall to aerate the water.

San Francisco, Calif. Alt. 61 Pop. 775,357

Seat of San Francisco County, and founded as a Presidio in 1776, the village of Yerba Buena, later San Francisco, did not materialize until 1835. Thirteen years later the California Gold Rush provided the impetus which made San Francisco one of the leading cities of the world. Shipping from all the world enters the famous Golden Gate, passes under the tremendous 4,200-foot span of steel, linking San Francisco to the northern counties, and sails into the quiet waters of the world's largest landlocked harbor. Major points of interest are Golden Gate Park, California Palace of The Legion of Honor, containing art treasures from all the world; Fisherman's Wharf; Chinatown; Civic Center, consisting of a group of seven huge structures including the only municipally owned opera house in the United States; Fleishhacker Zoo; and the famous Mission San Francisco de Asis, known also as Mission Dolores, the oldest building in San Francisco, and differing in architecture from the rest of California's Missions. Diversions for the casual visitor or the sojourner are infinite, and a definite air of hospitality will charm the visitor long after other memories dim. San Francisco with her fourteen hills will ever remain one of the world's romantic and interesting cities. Long known as a musical and theatrical center, it also offers line golf courses, bay and ocean fishing and every facility for outdoor life. Recreational areas abound on all sides, and the many parks have large sections devoted to various sports.

San Gabriel, Calif. Alt. 430 Pop. 20,343

San Gabriel is a pillar of history. With the incoming of the Spaniards and the arrival of the Franciscan Fathers a startling change took place among the Indians who occupied the fertile areas of the San Gabriel Valley. The Mission San Gabriel Archangel, the fourth to be built in the California chain, was founded in September of 1771, and it has been virtually in continuous use since that day, although the original building was long ago replaced by the present stone, brick and mortar structure. The mission, a veritable treasure trove, contains numerous relics of California's early days and is well worth a visit. It is open on week days from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. On the mission grounds there exists an old grapevine which covers 12,800 square feet and is said to be the largest vine of its kind in existence. San Gabriel retains much of its Spanish atmosphere. For many years it was the annual scene of the Mission Play, which depicted California's interesting early days. The city is surrounded by numerous ranches and farms, orange and lemon groves, and of particular interest is the garden of the Colonel Purcell adobe at 308 West Mission Boulevard, where you may see what are considered to be the first orange seedlings ever planted in California. The old adobe was built three years before the mission and it is thought that the seedlings were planted at that time.

Seat of Santa Clara County and founded November 29, 1777. Eight miles from the southern tip of San Francisco Bay, it is 47 miles south of that city and is the largest canning and dried fruit packing center in the world. Served by two major railroads and having excellent highways, San Jose contains many large manufacturing plants. Culturally San Jose has a splendid school system, over 60 churches and outstanding in the parks is Alum Rock—over 692 acres of rock and hills containing 22 active mineral springs. Joaquin Murietta, notorious bandit and known as the "Spanish Robin Hood," is reputed to have used a cave in the park as a hideout. San Jose is a residential city with attractive streets, homes, and excellent theaters. During April and May when the fruit trees are in bloom the entire area is a wonderland of beauty.

San Juan Capistrano, Calif. Alt. 103 Pop. 600

San Juan Capistrano is one of California's oldest cities and it is located near the coast on U.S. 101 approximately midway between Los Angeles and San Diego. It is attractively situated between the mountains and seashore, surrounded by low rolling hills and is the site of the famed San Juan Capistrano Mission, which was founded by Fray Junipero Serra in 1776. The mission was virtually destroyed by a severe earthquake in 1812 and was not rebuilt until 1860. It is one of the most beautiful of all of the missions, is a fine example of architecture and with its historic past is one of California's most interesting points.

Santa Ana, Calif. Alt. 120 Pop. 52,355

Largest city of Orange County, Santa Ana is situated in the heart of the beautiful Santa Ana River Valley and is a trade center serving a large surrounding population. Orange County today has 60,000 acres of oranges, and other noted crops include lemons, grapefruit, walnuts and avocados. Its municipal bowl, seating nearly 10,000, is used for such sports as football and baseball. Santa Ana history dates from the time of Antonio Yorba, a member of Portola's Expedition of 1769, which was organized in an effort to save Alta California for Spain. Yorba was granted a large tract of land known as the Rancho Santiago de Santa Ana. The old rancho was subdivided in 1868, the city founded in 1869, and since that time Santa Ana has become one of the Southland's progressive cities.

Santa Barbara, Calif. Alt. 33 Pop. 44,913

Seat of Santa Barbara County and one of California's best known and most interesting cities. Originally founded as a Presidio, or fort, in 1782. At the same time the site for the famous Mission Santa Barbara was chosen by the immortal Father Junipero Serra. Construction started in 1787 and continued for several years, and today it is regarded as the best preserved of the entire group. From this mission Santa Barbara gained the inspiration for the unique and charming architecture which characterizes the city. The Court House, completed in 1929, is a striking example of the results possible from such an inspiration. No edifice, designed for similar purpose, can be compared with this world-famous building for sheer beauty and individuality. Architectural experts have proclaimed it the most attractive public building on the North American Continent. Other outstanding points of interest are Museum of Natural History, Blakeslee Botanic Gardens, Hope Ranch, Old Pueblos, and the Andre Clark bird refuge.

Santa Monica, Calif. Alt. 57 Pop. 71,595

Visiting Southern California would be incomplete without seeing Santa Monica. Miles of beautiful crescent beach, famous Palisades Park, and the hundreds of fine seaside and canyon homes of the artists, musicians, writers and actors who live here combine to attract the tourist. A breakwater provides quiet water for the many fine yachts which call this their home port. Excellent ocean fishing may be had from pier, barge or live bait boats. Five miles east on Wilshire Boulevard lies Westwood Village, an ultramodern community of shops and homes which has sprung up beside the beautiful group of buildings comprising the University of California at Los Angeles. In this same area will be found the United States Veterans' Hospital, Bel Air, Beverly Hills, and running along the base of the nearby hills, Sunset Boulevard, one of the most interesting and beautiful drives in the United States.

Seattle, Wash. Alt. 24 Pop. 467,591

Seattle, the largest metropolis in the Northwest, is one of the world's great seaports and its giant docks, which can accommodate 120 ocean-going vessels at one time, are always busy with the coming and going of ships to the Orient, Alaska and every maritime nation in the world. Principal products of the port are fish and lumber and the Boeing airplane plant is one of Seattle's major industries. Ideally located on a hilly isthmus between Puget Sound and Lake Washington, Seattle's rich natural beauty offers much of scenic interest for the vacationist, with many beautiful parks, primitive forests, salt water and lake beaches. Lake Washington, forming the eastern boundary of the city, is 24 miles long and provides excellent yachting and water sports; 52-mile Washington Boulevard Drive circles Lake Washington and daily water tours affording many interesting views of the city are available. The University of Washington with an enrollment of 12,000 students is the largest in the Pacific-Northwest and its beautiful 582-acre campus is well worth a visit. Other points of interest in Seattle include Washington State Museum, Fisheries Hall No. 1, Seattle Art Museum, Chamber of Mines Museum, Public Frozen Fish Aquarium, Woodland Park, Seward Park and the Chinese Room of the L. C. Smith Building.

Vallejo, Calif. Alt. 40 Pop. 26,038

Situated at the east end of San Pablo Bay, Vallejo is a fast-growing metropolitan city fringed by great fruit, grain and livestock producing areas. Mare Island Navy Yard, across the channel from Vallejo, ranks as the largest in the West and one of the greatest plants of its kind in the world. First commandant of Mare Island was naval hero Admiral David Farragut, and since 1854 Mare Island has constructed every type of warcraft. In addition to the Yard are separate reservations for a gigantic ammunition depot, one of the largest hospitals in the West, and a vast Marine barracks. Soon after California had won its statehood, Vallejo—in 1851—was the capital of the State, but later lost it to Sacramento.

Vancouver, B.C. Alt. 32 Pop. 365,799

Incorporated as a city in 1886, Vancouver was destroyed by fire the same year, rebuilt, and today commands the respect of the world as one of the most important grain and lumber ports in the Western Hemisphere. Flags from every nation in the world may be seen flying at her huge docks, and a constant stream of ships glides in and out of her landlocked harbor. Points of interest include Stanley Park, a 1,000-acre woodland with over fifty miles of roads and trails; the lovely Capilano Estates on the North Shore, acknowledged to be one of the finest residential districts in North America; Capilano Park, also on the North Shore, an idyllic woodland retreat, and the unlimited excursion trips cruising the calm fjords of the inland water-ways with which Vancouver is surrounded on three sides. A two-hour delightful boat trip reaches rustic Vancouver Island, with charming Victoria at its southernmost tip. For the sportsman, salmon and trout fishing are found within a thirty-minute drive, and, in season, grouse and big game hunting are not far afield. Fourteen excellent golf courses, thirteen beaches and a plentiful supply of parks and playgrounds offer visitor and fortunate resident ample opportunity for recreation. Vancouver City Museum and Art Gallery offer interesting exhibits pertaining to natural history, and the Vancouver Art Gallery presents collections of British and Canadian art. Both galleries are open to the public at no charge. The city is also the location of the University of British Columbia. Two transcontinental railroads serve Vancouver, it is the terminus of two airlines, and innumerable steamship services are available.

Ventura, Calif. Alt. 35 Pop. 16,534

Seat of Ventura County, one of the most diversified counties in the United States in products, climate and topography. The site of San Buenaventura, the official name of the city, was first visited by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, who landed October 10, 1542, making a four-day stay. In 1782 one of the famous California Missions was established here by Padre Junipero Serra, who at the same time placed a cross on a hill overlooking the mission site. The Mission is still used for church services and the cross, maintained by the city, still stands, and is visited by thousands annually. The more important agricultural products are dairy and poultry, honey, lemons, lima beans, walnuts and oranges. Miles of beautiful beaches, city and county parks, and the mountain playground to the north provide Ventura with every recreational activity.

Victoria, B.C. Alt. 76 Pop. 70,000

Capital of British Columbia, it has grown from a Hudson Bay fort and trading post, established in 1843. Noted for its mild climate and flowers, it is at the southern tip of Vancouver Island and is connected by ferry with Vancouver, Seattle and Port Angeles. Nearby at Esquimalt is the Royal Canadian Naval Base, and the dry dock, comprising 930 acres is one of the largest in the world.

Its atmosphere is distinctly British; tennis, cricket and rugby are popular games and the shops are stocked with British goods.

The Parliament Buildings overlooking the harbor are open to the public and house museums of natural history, mineral exhibits, libraries and archives containing Indian relics; and maps, charts and logs of the discoverers of the Pacific Coast.

Other points of interest include Thunderbird Park, containing many fine specimens of native Indian totem poles and other carvings; Helmchen House, adjoining Thunderbird Park, built in 1852, is one of the oldest pioneer homes in Victoria; Dominion Observatory, containing one of the largest telescopes of its kind in the world; Butchart's Sunken Gardens and Crystal Gardens, which contains one of the largest indoor warm and sea water pools on the continent.

Victorville, Calif. Alt. 2,715 Pop. 3,241

A blend of the present and past, it was known as Mormon Crossing from 1878 to 1885; a thriving mining town, it was then Victor and later Victorville. Its typical frontier buildings remained after the mining dwindled about 1900 and a few years later the buildings attracted the motion picture industry and from 1914 to 1937 more than 200 "Wild West Pictures" were filmed here.

Virginia City, Nev. Alt. 6,250 Pop. 952

Seat of Storey County and one of the early West's most famous mining camps. Here is the great Comstock Lode, from whose miles of tunnels, stopes and shafts poured millions in gold and silver. Here was published Nevada's first newspaper, with Bret Harte and Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) on its staff. Here one will see the homes of many an early San Francisco millionaire, the Storey County Court House, Piper's Opera House, the Catholic Church "St. Mary's in the Mountains," and numerous old-time business houses and dwellings. Virginia City, with nearby Gold Hill and Silver City are truly towns of a bygone era. Considerable mining is still under way, but the historic Virginia and Truckee Railroad has pulled up its tracks, with the town being served by the less picturesque motor vehicle.

Yosemite National Park, Calif.

Alt. 3,960 Pop. 800

Yosemite National Park, in the heart of the Sierra Nevada, is one of the chief scenic attractions of California. Much greater both in area and beauty than is generally known, the Park extends over 11,766.16 square miles of superb primeval wilderness. Often believed identical with Yosemite Valley, the entire Park extends in three directions above the rim of the valley.

For sheer beauty, Yosemite National Park is incomparable; water-falls dropping a distance equal to ten Niagaras; sheer granite bluffs rising nearly perpendicularly for approximately 5,000 feet; lovely green forest; beautiful lakes and the busily tumbling Merced River—all combine in a never-to-be forgotten sight. The United States National Park Service maintains an interesting museum and ranger naturalists act in the capacity of guides, ready and willing to answer the visitor's every question and reveal the many fascinations of nature which abound on every side. During the summer mer season a splendid program of lectures and nature guide service is offered visitors.

A variety of accommodations is available, including housekeeping facilities. Stores in the Valley provide groceries and other needs.

Customs and Immigration Regulations

CANADA

ADMISSION OF AUTOMOBILES: Automobiles may be brought into Canada under a Traveller's Vehicle Permit by non-residents for their personal transportation whether for pleasure or business purposes, for a period up to six months without the payment of duty or deposit thereon.

An automobile is admissible only when brought in for the use of the owner or a member of his immediate family, except that a tourist may bring in for touring purposes an automobile not his own property, provided he is a non-resident of Canada, and produces to the satisfaction of the Customs Officer a letter or other evidence from the owner identifying the vehicle by motor and license numbers, and stating that the person bringing it in has his permission to use the automobile for touring in Canada.

Vehicles equipped with mobile telephones may enter Canada provided the owner has a written authorization signed by the Controller of Telecommunications, Department of Transport, to use the equipment in Canada. If no authorization is produced the vehicle may enter only if the installations are sealed by Customs so as to prevent operation. The seal will be removed on report outwards.

PERMITS

ENTRY FOR 48 HOURS: Automobiles may enter Canada for touring purposes for a period not exceeding 48 hours by the owner surrendering his State License Card to the Customs Officer at the Port of Entry, provided he returns to the United States at the same port. If he desires to remain longer than 48 hours, or to leave at any other Port of Entry, he must obtain a 60 day permit upon entering Canada.

60 DAY PERMITS: Automobiles may be entered for touring purposes, free of duty or deposit, for a period of 60 days by obtaining a permit at the Port of Entry. This permit may be extended up to six months on application to any Canadian Collector of Customs, without bond or deposit.

MOTORCYCLES, BICYCLES AND TRAILERS: The regulations regarding the entry of automobiles also apply to motorcycles and bicycles. A separate permit is not required for a trailer.

SALESMEN: A salesman entering Canada with sample cases must have in his possession a company invoice made out in triplicate, noting merchandise being carried.

At the discretion of the border officials, he may or may not be asked to post a deposit equivalent to the duty and taxes payable on the samples. This deposit, if requested, will be returned to the individual when he leaves Canada, under custom's supervision, provided that he leaves Canada at the point of entry. Customs must be told in advance of the salesman's intent to return to the U. S. via point of entry, in order for the salesman to pick up his cash deposit on the way home.

Should he return to the United States by way of a different border crossing, the deposit will be mailed to him at his U. S. Address.

SELECTIVE SERVICE REGISTRANTS: All male civilians who are registered under the United States Selective Service Act, should consult their local Selective Service Board, and, if necessary, obtain permission to leave the United States.

TOURISTS: Permanent residents of the United States entering Canada as tourists do not require passports. It is suggested, however, that the possession of identification papers will facilitate entry in case the examining officer should require documentary evidence as to the bona fides of the tourist. Naturalized citizens of the United States should be prepared to present their certificates of naturalization, and residents of the United States who are not citizens must present their Alien Registration Card. Those entering Canada for a longer period than six months should obtain a re-entry permit from the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service. Persons (other than British subjects, United States citizens, citizens of Ireland, and French citizens born therein coming from France) who are residents of Europe proceeding to Canada as tourists or visitors, must have their passports visaed by a Canadian Immigration Officer stationed on the Continent of Europe. This regulation applies to persons traveling in direct transit through the United States as well as those arriving at Canadian ocean ports.

Persons (other than British subjects, United States citizens and citizens of Ireland) in the United States under temporary status, upon entering Canada as tourists or visitors are required to have valid passports in their possession.

BAGGAGE: Such wearing apparel, toilet articles and personal effects as actually accompany and are in the use of the tourist and as are necessary and appropriate for the immediate purpose and convenience of the journey, may be admitted into Canada duty free. This does not apply, however, to merchandise or articles intended for other persons or for sale. Fifty cigars, two hundred cigarettes, two pounds of manufactured tobacco and one quart of alcoholic liquor may be brought in free of duty by a non-resident traveler. Fishing tackle, portable boats, canoes, outboard motors, tents, camp equipment, golf clubs, tennis racquets, radios, phonographs, musical instruments, cameras (still and motion picture, as well as a reasonable quantity of film for use therein), and typewriters, previously used by the tourist and actually in his possession at the time of his arrival in Canada, may be admitted free of duty. All such articles must be reported to the Customs Officer at the Port of Entry and must be identified and reported out either at the Port of Entry or another Port, within six months of time of entry.

CURRENCY: Visitors may bring in with them any amount of currency and may take out with them any unspent portion.

FIREARMS: Rifles and shotguns for sporting purposes and fifty rounds of ammunition will be admitted duty free, however they must be registered with the Customs Officer at the Port of Entry. Consult the proper authorities regarding the necessary hunting licenses or permits. Automatic firearms, pistols and revolvers are not admitted.

DOGS: All dogs for entry into Canada from the United States of America shall be accompanied by a certificate in one of the following forms:—

- (a) A certificate signed or endorsed by a veterinary inspector of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry certifying that the dog has been inspected and found free from any symptoms of contagious disease; that the dog has not been exposed to the infection of rabies and that no case of rabies has occurred within a radius of fifty miles of the place in which the dog has been kept for a period of six months immediately prior to date of shipment.
- (b) A certificate signed by a licensed veterinarian of the state of origin certifying that the dog has been inspected and found free from any symptoms of contagious disease; that so far as can be ascertained it has not been exposed to the infection of rabies and that it has been vaccinated against rabies within a period of six months of the date of shipment. The certificate to show the date and number of such vaccination.

Performing dogs entered for temporary stay and kept under direct control while in Canada shall be exempt from this Order.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS

ENTERING CANADA:

- (a) Report to the Canadian Immigration Officer at Port of Entry into Canada. Foreign-born citizens and alien residents of the United States should be prepared to present credentials establishing their legal residence in the United States.
- (b) Report to the Canadian Customs at Port of Entry into Canada and obtain a permit for admission of automobile. Failure to report may result in seizure of car. License Cards should be presented. Do not fail to declare any articles or goods that may be subject to duty.

UNITED STATES

ENTERING UNITED STATES: Automobiles may enter the United States for touring purposes only, and may return either by the Port of Entry or by any other Port by obtaining the necessary Customs Permit. This permit is granted gratis, for a period of six months, but can be extended to one year by putting up the necessary cash bond equal to the amount of duty. This cash bond will be refunded on proof of the car being returned within the specified time.

RETURNING TO THE UNITED STATES: On their departure from Canada, visitors from the United States may have to prove to the United States Immigration Officers that they have the right to be admitted to that country. Bona fide American citizens should have no difficulty through answers to questions and otherwise in satisfying the Examining Immigration Officer. In case they are asked to show papers to establish their identity and place of residence, the possession of personal papers or other identifying documents would be helpful; for example, old passport, birth or baptismal certificate, voter's certificate, tax bills, letter of identification from a bank manager, or responsible municipal official, personal letters, car license, driver's license or similar papers. Identification papers bearing the visitor's signature or photograph are always helpful. It is suggested that naturalized citizens carry with them their naturalization certificates.

A Canadian or other alien who is a legal permanent resident of the United States must present their Alien Registration Card. Those entering Canada for a longer period than six months should obtain a re-entry permit from the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service.

ARTICLES PURCHASED IN CANADA: Under the United States tariff regulations, residents of that country, returning from Canada may bring back, free of duty, articles aggregating up to two hundred dollars ($200.00) in value, acquired abroad for personal and household use or as souvenirs or curios, but not intended for sale, provided they have remained in Canada for not less than forty-eight hours. Such exemption from payment of duty shall not be allowed more than once in any 31-day period. Foodstuffs, cigarettes, tobacco, 100 cigars, and not over one wine gallon of distilled spirits, wines or malt liquors (provided the quantity is not prohibited by state law) may be included in this exemption.

Each member of a family is entitled to this exemption of two hundred dollars ($200.00). When husband and wife or parents and minor or financially dependent children are traveling together, such exemption may be grouped and allowance made without regard to which member is the owner.

All articles claimed within the exemption must, however, be declared to the United States Customs Officers. Articles intended for future delivery and articles sent forward in bond must be declared in writing at the Port of Entry at the time of the resident's return to the United States if the $200.00 exemption is to be claimed for them. Examination will be facilitated if receipted bills for the purchases be presented.

IN ADDITION TO THE $200 EXEMPTION MENTIONED ABOVE, a returning resident who has remained beyond the territorial limits of the United States for a period of not less than twelve days, shall be permitted to bring into the United States up to but not exceeding $300 in value of articles (excluding distilled spirits, wines, malt liquors and cigars) acquired abroad for personal or household use or as souvenirs or curios, but not bought on commission or intended for sale, free of duty:

PROVIDED FURTHER, that any subsequent sale, within three years after the date of arrival of such returning resident in the United States, of articles acquired and brought into the United States pursuant to the provisions of the immediately preceding proviso shall subject the returning resident declaring the articles to double the import duty which would have been collected had this additional exemption not been in effect:

PROVIDED FURTHER, that the additional exemption shall apply only to articles declared in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury by such returning resident who has not taken advantage of the said exemption within the six-month period immediately preceding his return to the United States.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS

LEAVING CANADA:

- (a) Report to the Canadian Customs at a boundary port of exit and present your automobile entry permit for cancellation. (The tourist will greatly assist in the preparation of travel statistics if he will be kind enough to state the approximate total amount spent on his visit to Canada, if asked to do so. The supplying of this information is, however, entirely voluntary on the part of the tourist.)

- (b) Report to the United States Immigration Officer at the Port of Entry into the United States.
- (c) Report to the United States Customs at Port of Entry into the United States and present State License Card. All articles or goods purchased or otherwise acquired in Canada must be declared, whether exempt from duty or not.

WARNING

All motorists while on tour are advised to keep their automobiles locked at all times when unattended, and wherever possible place the vehicle in a garage or supervised parking area. Never leave valuables in your car even if assurance is given by attendants that they will be safe. Garages and parking lots may not be legally responsible for the loss or theft of articles from your car and you may have no legal claim for the missing property.

WHAT TO DO IN CASE OF AN ACCIDENT

The following instructions are for the guidance of insured members of the Automobile Club of Southern California:

1. If in Southern California contact the nearest office of your Club.
2. If in Northern California contact the nearest office of the California State Automobile Association.
3. If out of State notify the Interinsurance Exchange at 2601 South Figueroa Street, Los Angeles—by collect telegram if a serious loss, or by air mail if a minor loss. You will be informed by telegram or air mail the address of the nearest adjuster, who will be instructed to handle your claim.

In the event a non-resident is involved in a traffic accident in British Columbia which causes bodily injury or damage to property in excess of $25.00, he is required to furnish security or an insurance policy or a certificate that he is insured. A "MOTOR VEHICLE LIABILITY INSURANCE CARD" can be furnished by the non-resident's insurance carrier.

AGRICULTURAL INSPECTION

All cars entering the State of California are required to undergo agricultural quarantine inspection at stations established for that purpose at or in proximity to the State line. This is a measure designed to guard against the importation of plant infestations and diseases injurious to the agriculture of the State.
